AT MAJOR SPORTING EVENTS, PROTECTION IS ALSO A TEAM EFFORT

THE TOURISTIC ACCOMMODATIONS SECTOR IS KEY TO CREATING SAFE ENVIRONMENTS

Thousands of people stay at tourist accommodations every day. During the booking process, during check-in, during check-out, during your stay, or at any time during your visit, you can identify potential risk situations and help prevent human trafficking and exploitation.

SOME SIGNS

- Someone controls a person's documents or communication during check-in or their stay.
- Someone is unaware of basic information about their reservation or stay.
- Someone seems to have very little luggage considering the length of their stay.
- Someone shows fear, anxiety, or discomfort in the presence of their companion.
- Frequent and unusual comings and goings of people in a room, apartment, or home are observed.
- Pay special attention to situations involving minors who appear to be under someone else's control or who show signs of fear or vulnerability.

WHAT TO PAY ATTENTION TO?

- No single indicator on its own confirms a situation of trafficking or exploitation.
- These are warning signs that, taken together and depending on the context, can help identify and prevent it.

WHAT TO DO?

REMEMBER THAT YOUR ROLE IS NOT TO INVESTIGATE OR CONFIRM A CASE OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING OR EXPLOITATION

- OBSERVE
pay attention to unusual situations.
- DO NOT CONFRONT
avoid directly confronting the people involved.

- COMMUNICATE
your supervisor and/or security.
- CONTACT
emergency services or the authorities if there is an immediate risk to the person's physical safety.

YOUR ATTENTION CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Every professional can help create safer environments to combat human trafficking and other forms of exploitation.
