AT MAJOR SPORTING EVENTS, PROTECTION IS ALSO A TEAM EFFORT

RESTORATION IS KEY TO BUILDING SAFE ENVIRONMENTS

Every day, thousands of people visit bars, restaurants, coffee shops, and other food and beverage establishments. The day-to-day operations of these establishments and direct contact with customers, guests, and vendors make it possible to identify potential risk situations and prevent human trafficking and exploitation.

WHAT TO PAY ATTENTION TO?

- Someone constantly monitors another person's interactions.
- Someone makes decisions for another person, manages their reservations, responds on their behalf, or controls their payments.
- Someone does not have free access to their phone, documents, or personal belongings.
- During a service, someone shows fear, anxiety, or discomfort when interacting with, or in the presence of, the person accompanying them.
- Pay special attention to situations involving minors who appear to be under someone else's control or who show signs of fear or vulnerability.

- No single indicator on its own confirms a situation of trafficking or exploitation.
- These are warning signs that, taken together and depending on the context, can help identify and prevent it.
